

■ Reading gives us information

© Commonwealth of Australia 2006

■ What we do and what it means

Wade: Granddad, that's the Rovers.

Granddad: Yes, I think they're playing tonight.

We read everyday materials like newspapers, magazines and catalogues with children so they can see how useful reading is.

Some children, especially some boys, are more interested in information reading than in stories.

Later, they will work at learning to read so they can find out about things and follow instructions.

An Australian Government initiative, funded by the Department of Education, Science and Training