

■ We can tell stories in lots of ways

© Commonwealth of Australia 2006

■ What we do and what it means

The children draw the story about the animal to show the others.

Children learn how to read and write by being with their community.

They listen to how adults and older children tell stories and draw them for others to read.

They begin to imitate by telling stories, reading the signs and drawing events.

An Australian Government initiative, funded by the Department of Education, Science and Training